ZINE vol. 4
Sept. 2020

Many students are back in session, and once again it feels like Bloomington is booming. We are continuing this project, because as we have been warned, COVID-19 is still rampant, and the pandemic is not over yet. So please keep wearing your mask, washing your hands, and practicing safe distance practices. We want a safe and healthy Bloomington.

For many, these practices have not stopped, and the world has still not returned to “normal.” Nor is that something that may happen again ☐ changes in our systems, beliefs, and lives have occurred, and what was normal before might not seem “normal” now. What are some ways that your “normalcy” has changed? We would love for you all to help us explore this topic in our next Quaranzine ☐ don’t forget to keep those entries coming! We love to see what people are working on, how y’all are feeling, and any other subject matter that feels pertinent in these times. The deadline to submit to the next Quaranzine is Sept 28, 2020.

We hope that you enjoy what our contributors have made and shared. Your continued support has been amazing, both in contributing and reading, and we’re already looking forward to the next edition. It’s almost Fall, and the Harvest Full Moon!

Mrs. Robin just Tweeted: Thanks to a generous donation from La Corona Salon, I can now repair my empty nest.

Or perhaps you'd like me to feather your hair?

Feathering isn't just for the birds ☺

Does your kitty or Poggie need a De-Fur-ment? We'll Brush 'em ☺

I wanna look purrfect

This photo represents the feeling of living in self isolation during quarantine, away from our normal activities and connections, unable to do what we normally do.

By the way, I saw this butterfly later in my yard on my butterfly bush. It made it.

PAN-DEMIC

Perhaps there will be
A cure, soon, but
Not for now. So much
Debating. To much "personal liberty" talk.
Everyone! Listen not to politicians but to Medical experts. Restrictions necessary
If we are to stop this scourge.
Consider: dying alone with no one to hold your hand...
